

Liposuction breast reduction.

Liposuction of the breast can be an almost scarless alternative for breast reduction. The recovery period is minimal, but the breast shape depends on the elasticity of the skin and can take many months to recover. For women with elastic skin, this is an alternative to the usual breast reduction, but they have to be prepared for a lot of bruising and for the shape to take a long time to recover.

If the skin is not so elastic, then this will not give you an optimal form, but only reduce the volume.

Liposuction breast can be combined with a further traditional breast reduction or a breast lift at a later date, if the form of the breast is not acceptable.
